My Old Kentucky Home

Before "Old Folks at Home" was published (1851), Stephen Foster had never been south of the Ohio River. "My Old Kentucky Home" romanticizes the life of the Southern Negro.

Two Policemen Held In Death Of Negro Man

Hensley, Moore Put Under $10,000 Bonds On Murder Charge

Two Harlan city policemen, Avery Hensley and Jim Moore, were under $10,000 bond each today to answer possible grand jury investigation of a "willful murder" charge filed against them by the widow of a Negro man whose bullet riddled and beaten body was found on Cranks Creek early yesterday morning.

Sheriff Clinton C. Ball, who took Hensley and Moore into custody and placed them in county jail, said the murder charge was filed by Beatrice Carson, wife of Ray (Blick) Carson, former city street department employe who at the time of his death was employed at the garage of the V. T. C. Bus Lines, owned and operated by Merle H. Middleton, Republican nominee for mayor.

Head, Body Wounds
Carson's body, with head and body wounds, and with bruises, was found in a blicket by an unidentified man on horseback, soon after the Negro woman had complained to the sheriff's office that her husband was taken from their home in Georgetown Addition late Saturday night by the two policemen.

Sheriff Ball said the warrants were issued before County Judge F. M. Meadows of the woman's charge that her husband was forced into the officers' automobile.

Merle Middleton said last night that Carson had worked 13 hours at the garage on Saturday, and that the first he knew of his missing was when Carson's wife came to the garage and reported that she had failed to find him at either the county or city jail. He said the Negro had left the city employment to become an election worker for him in the August primary, and that after the election Carson was employed at the garage.

Both Hensley and Moore were quoted as denying they knew anything about the Negro's death or that they had forced Carson from his home. They executed bond a few minutes after being arrested, waiving examining trial before Judge Meadows.

Grand Jury Refuses To Accuse Policemen In Slaying

Judge Forester Says Negro Victim's Case To Come Up Again

After first reporting no indictment in the slaying of Ray (Blick) Carson, Negro, garage employe, for whose death two city policemen were under bond, the grand jury of Harlan Circuit Court today accused another Negro, Mason (Hog) Horn, of the murder.

The indictment was among the last batch of true bills voted by the jury before it was dismissed late this morning, by Judge James S. Forester. The jury had been instructed by Judge Forester earlier this morning to return to the room and make a report on Carson's death. The surprise indictment against the Negro was the surprise.

Two Officers Arrested

The two patrolmen, Avery Hensley and Jim Moore, were ordered by Judge Forester to be committed under $10,000 bonds each which they were placed by County Judge F. M. Meadows on September 25. Judge Forester explained that the report of the grand jury did not dispose of the Hensley-Moore case, and he remanded Commonwealth's Attorney Aule Hogg to draw an order referring the Hensley-Moore warrant to the next grand jury scheduled to meet in February.

Carson, an employe of the V. T. C. Bus Lines garage on Cumberland Avenue, was found dead on Cranks Creek on the morning of September 20 a few hours after his wife, Beatrice Carson, charged that the "Lynchburg" man, was taken from their Georgetown home by the two policemen and taken away in an automobile.

Carson had been shot and beaten, and thrown into a blicket on Cranks Creek, according to Sheriff Clinton C. Ball.

Ka-City Employe
The slain Negro had been an employe of the city's Street Department, but he resigned during the August primary election campaign.

Merle H. Middleton, owner-manager of the bus lines and successful utility administration candidate for the Republican nomination as mayor, said Carson left the city's employment to work for him during the election, and that the Negro was employed at the garage after the primary. Carson was reported to have worked 13 hours on Saturday before his death. Mr. Middleton declaring that the first he knew of Carson's missing was when the Negro woman complained to him and to the sheriff the next morning.

Little was known among court attaches about Horn. It was learned that the indictment was voted by the grand jury on the strength of the testimony of two white men and a Negro man.

NEGRO IS KILLED BY SIX OFFICERS

Refused to Surrender When Found Under House; Charged With Murder.

Mayfield, Ky., June 19. (AP)—Sam Moss, crippled negro chef, sought since Sunday in connection with the fatal shooting of a policeman, was shot to death early today when he refused to surrender to six officers, who found him hidden under a house.

Coroner Brown McClain announced the shooting.

He said he received a message last night that Moss, about 55, was at the home of Joe Parrott, negro.

McClain said he got five state and city officers and went to the place. They saw Moss under the house.

"Come on out or we'll have to kill you," McClain said Moss was told.

Moss refused, the coroner added, and a fusilade of shots was fired. Moss was dead from seven bullet wounds when found.

Patrolman Martley Gillum, 65, was killed and two other officers were wounded Sunday, the coroner said, when they went to Moss' home to arrest him on a liquor law violation charge.

Moss fled and his whereabouts were unreported until last night.

Sam Moss Refuses To Surrender To Posse

BULLETIN

FRANKFORT, KY., June 19.

(AP)—State Highway Commissioner Lyter Donaldson announced today the discharge of two highway patrolmen and the suspension of four others for violation of regulations in regard to liquor seizure near Mayfield.

MAYFIELD, Ky., June 19. (AP)—

Sam Moss, 60, crippled Negro chef who had been sought since Sunday in connection with the fatal shooting of Hartley Gillum, 55, Mayfield police officer, and the wounding of two other officers, was shot and killed early today by six officers who found him hidden under a house. Coroner Brown McClain said that Moss refused to surrender.

A posse of about 150 persons, which included national guardsmen and CCC members, had blocked all roads leading out of the city and canvassed the two Mayfield Negro settlements.

Gillum was killed and State Patrolman Steve Roberts was shot in the right hand and abdomen and City Patrolman Dennis Vaughn in the right shoulder Sunday by Moss when they raided his home in search of illicit whisky. Moss was reported to have fired upon the posse with a shotgun.

Shortly after the shooting, Moss' home was burned and County Judge W. H. Crowder said "the supposition is that members of the posse with a shotgun.

Judge Crowder stated that Officer Bill Peters related that when the police emerged "after finding a quantity of whisky in Moss' house," the Negro, who had not been at home, "opened fire with buckshot."

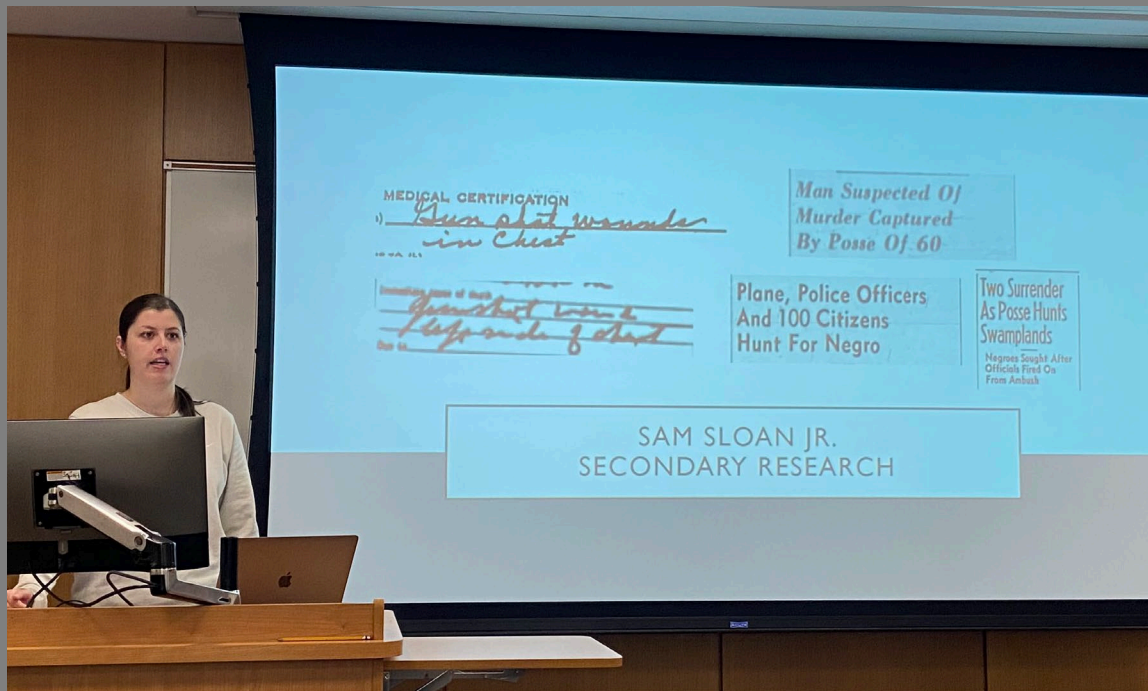

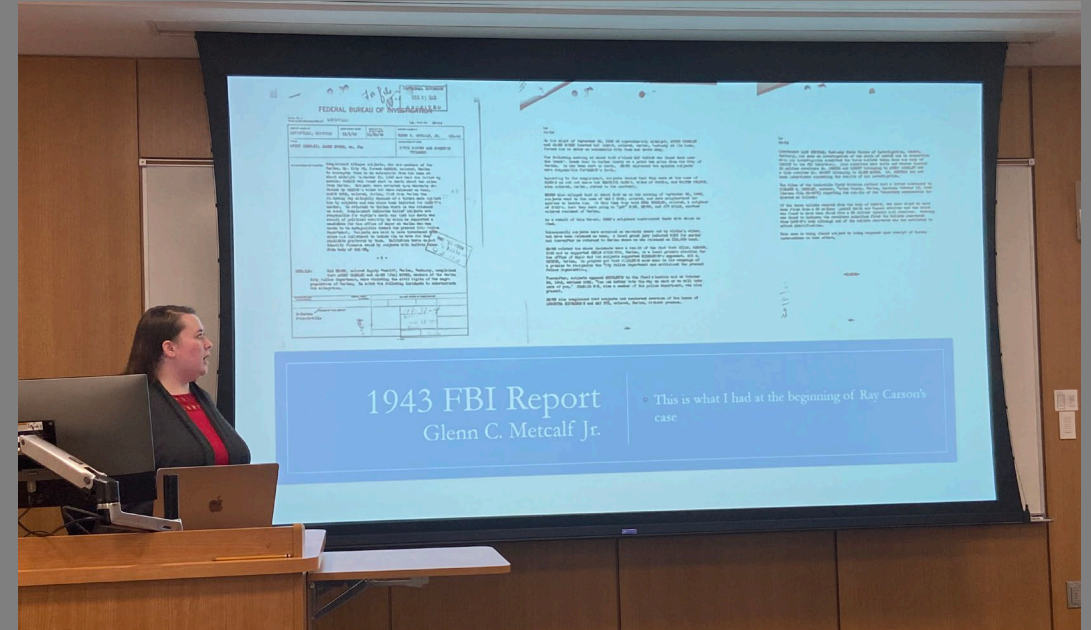

Odd Fact

In the ruins of the famous temple of the sun god at Baalbek, Syria, are the largest stones ever used by man. Some of the great blocks are more than 60 feet long and nearly 20 feet square.

Student Perspectives

I have had the amazing opportunity this semester to participate in CRRJ...While the work in CRRJ can be emotionally draining and taxing, if only 1 more voice, which would have otherwise remained silenced, is heard, seen, and talked about because of CRRJ, then every bit of the time, energy, and resources spent will have been worth it!—Alyssa Wiggins

The opportunity to be a part of the University of Kentucky's inaugural section of the Civil Rights and Restorative Justice Clinic has been nothing short of amazing! I've enjoyed researching the stories of victims and piecing together what is available to us by digging through newspapers, records, and other documents. Pushing these cases even just an inch closer to restorative justice makes the hours of difficult and emotional work worth it!"—Cori Agnoni
